Storytime

Animals on Parade

Musical Storytime

Every animal in this musical parade is playing a different instrument, but they all follow the same rhythm! Read this musical story together and you'll find yourself tapping, humming, or jingling the simple rhythm yourselves!

"Reading" a Rebus

Even though your child isn't reading yet, the pre-literacy (or emergent reading) years are full of storytime opportunities!

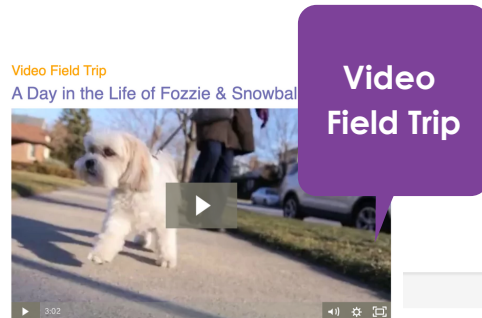

The combined picture rebus/"fill-in-the-blank" format of this story encourages the development of phonemic awareness, visual processing, comprehension, and prediction skills. Children must understand the storyline, follow along visually and aurally, and use context and emerging rhyme recognition to predict the next word. ("Toot-tooty-toot, the (cat) blew her ____.") Referring to picture clues helps you understand what comes next in the text, and also hints at what's to come in the rhyme sequence.

You can encourage the development of pre-literacy skills by reading books and playing games that use picture cues and the "fill-in-the-blank" technique.
